4	I also run a pray4bangladesh page for prayer mobilization.	3/28/2018 8:20 AM
5	I use social media messaging apps for ministry--primarily to communicate with other members of my team, not to reach out for evangelistic purposes to those who do not know the Lord. However, if I have an opportunity to witness to an unbelieving friend who is connected via socmed, I will. Typically I use social media posts (e.g., Facebook wall) a few times a year for family updates, but otherwise I'm only there because it has a communication platform. To me this question is confusing because I would technically call FB Messenger "social media" and I do use it for social purposes, but it also has parallels with apps like Viber or WhatsApp which I would call 'social media' but not use them in the same way or (often) for the same reasons. Perhaps you should define 'social media' before asking this??	3/28/2018 12:04 AM

34	I distribute materials in SD cards.	3/26/2018 12:18 AM

2018 Mobile Ministry Forum (MMF) Survey

35	I often show locals that they can easily download the Bible in their phones, which they are much more comfortable with than having paper gear. We listen to the audio portions of it as well. I have also posted Bible stories on Snapchat using art and/or stick figures. In one of our campaigns we sent daily messages using WhatsApp to seekers. We have shown some YouTube videos to locals (Nabeel Qureshi's last few videos as he was dying were very poignant and good). We'd love to know how/where to get more.	3/26/2018 12:17 AM
36	I have Bible app on my phone, and Jesus Film too, so when I share the gospel, I can share with them the Bible verses, then lead them to some websites or helpful apps for helping them on their discipleship journey, for example: Bible app, Jesus Film, Oneway.vn,...	3/26/2018 12:16 AM
37	A lot of it is through sharing scripture apps	3/26/2018 12:09 AM
38	I probably use Facebook to share with friends media which communicates Jesus.	3/25/2018 7:28 PM
39	I and my colleagues have found most media content to be too generic and full of unnecessary stumbling blocks that confuse our audience, more than help. Therefore, we've seen a great need to develop local content that communicates clearly rather than repurposed, generic content produced for other communication contexts.	3/22/2018 6:23 PM
40	I mostly use my Bible app to look up scriptures and read them to the person in Central Asian Russian (CARS).	3/22/2018 8:20 AM
41	I've shown people the Jesus Film, Walking With Jesus, and Magdalena's Story, as well as parables of Jesus cartoons from Max7.	3/19/2018 6:37 AM
42	If I am in a shop I usually ask what people group the shop assistant is from and I usually have a scripture app of their language that I can show them. Our scripture apps also have audio linked to the text...so even if they are not used to reading their language they can follow along. Other times I play songs or scripture for people if I am waiting somewhere.	3/19/2018 5:48 AM
43	Have not felt like I could do it naturally. I prefer to chat with a person without using a phone.	3/19/2018 5:19 AM

16	Any media I create I want to be sustainable, in that it can also be created by a local with training with software that is widely and easily available.	3/19/2018 5:48 AM
17	Smart phones in our target country are largely China knock offs that use pirated OS, which precludes playstore installs and upgrades. Often the phone memory is full. Also internet is not widely available. SD cards don't solve the gap since many phones don't have them, and people don't know enough about file management to access them. Things will slowly improve. Maybe 3-5 years.	3/19/2018 5:19 AM
